CASE STUDY

- Q.15. The toothpaste was one which was characterized as a hyper segmented market. There was toothpaste for bad breath, for cavities, for taste and even for vegetarian people. However, market has almost revived after the introduction of 24 hour total protection toothpaste. The market has seen almost all major brands introducing a product in this category. HUL, Godrej, and P&G are some of the brands which have come out with campaigns to get into the “Consideration set” of the consumer mindset. However, for a commodity kind of product creating a brand recall and differentiation is very difficult. As such brands have become a “me too” brand and all of them are looking that one appeal to set their product

You are required:

- (a) To study the various appeals of 24 hour total toothpaste providers in the market.
- (b) Identify an appeal which according to you can be used more efficiently to increase customer recall.
